

Artist's Statement

This is a simple art piece featuring a portrait of George Floyd. Next to it is a recent percentage scale of how many people are imprisoned do to their color/racial background. Below is the governments logo, the brain is representing a system that the government believes is right. Because of this the police follow in their footsteps as it's their job. Some people are only given a warning while others are automatically arrested or threatened. This is because of the government's mentality. It's unfair for those of color, just because the police work for the government they should still allow them to be free willed when arresting someone, and not be racist towards the situation. In the lower corner theirs a group of protestors, protesting against racism and justice for George Floyd.
